Arrangements made by the organisers for the duration of the event

In order to ensure that the event is accessible and free of discrimination, we have made a number of arrangements, which we would like to inform you about here. At the same time, however, it must be emphasised that we are dependent on your help in creating a hackathon that is free of discrimination and as accessible as possible (see also 'What is Awareness What is Consensus?').

Precautions taken by the organisers to ensure a workshop that is as accessible and non-discriminatory as possible:

- Accessible travel and premises:
  Our conference will take place virtually via Zoom (https://zoom.us/download)
- Room equipment:
  We try to provide sufficient light sources, technical devices and ensure enough space so that everyone can follow the conference program in a relaxed manner.

- Moderation and technical support:
  For each presentation, moderators will be present to ensure a smooth and accessible event. We sadly can't provide some devices. Please don't hesitate to contact us if you have any questions or concerns regarding the schedule or technical aspects!
- Barrier-free and non-discriminatory communication / Content design:
  Before, during, and after the conference, we strive to ensure accessible and non-discriminatory communication. Unfortunately, we cannot rule out the possibility that we or other participants at the conference may make mistakes. This awareness concept is intended to motivate us, the organizers, and all other participants in the conference to contribute to an accessible and non-discriminatory event. We tried our best to take care of executable, gendering, and trigger warnings if necessary. Our resources sadly don't allow us to provide an appropriate design for people with colour blindness.
- Support in dealing with discrimination: Discrimination cannot be ruled out at any event. As organisers, we see it as our responsibility to clearly communicate incidents and complaints (in consultation with those affected) to guests and to take appropriate action.

During the event

- At the beginning of the event, there will be an explanation of the code of conduct and the awareness concept. Feel free to ask questions!
- Information about contact persons you'll find within this documents

Contact persons

If you have any questions about the workshop schedule and organisation, please feel free to approach us. Our staff will be happy to assist you at any time.

You can be sure that your concerns will be listened to and dealt with in a confidential and responsible manner.

If necessary, please contact Clara Manzel (+49 1515 5948618) or Ilinca Graur (+49 173 3102177, ilinca.m.graur@gmail.com) directly. In an emergency, you can also reach the german police (110) or rescue service (112) by telephone.

DGfE-Sektion Medienpädagogik #mpaed2022 – Inklusive Medienbildung in einer mediatisierten Welt: Medienpädagogische Perspektiven auf ein interprofessionelles Forschungsfeld

Conferences and meetings bring together a wide variety of people. This diversity greatly enriches our conference. Everyone should feel comfortable and safe at the conference and be able to participate fully. This works when everyone takes joint responsibility for positive interaction.

We want the conference to be barrier-free and free of discrimination, and we ask you all to take joint responsibility. With our awareness concept, we want to:

- Explain what awareness is and what we can all do to increase awareness
- Provide information about counselling and support options in cases of discrimination and boundary violations during the conference
- Signal our willingness to respond to needs
- Inform contributors and participants about how they can contribute to a discrimination-free space
- Provide information about the accessibility of our conference

Consensus

- Any form of (sexualised) violence will not be tolerated and may result in immediate expulsion from the event, regardless of the time of day or event.
  - ➔ Violence (including sexualised violence) is an exercise of power and describes actions that are carried out against a person's will. (Sexualised) violence can take various forms: psychological or physical, in the form of boundary violations, harassment, assault and discrimination. Language is also a means of power and can be violent. For example, through misgendering, using derogatory terms, etc.
- In interpersonal actions and interactions, consensus should always be sought. Consensus is explicitly required from those present but not directly involved, if they are affected by the action.
- Alcohol and cannabis may only be consumed to an extent that allows the person consuming them to respect the respect the boundaries of the other participants and communicate their own boundaries. The organisers may restrict or stop the serving of alcohol at their own discretion in this regard.
- Cannabis and nicotine may only be smoked in the designated areas.

Anyone who does not act in accordance with the above points may be excluded from the event.

How do we want to interact with each other at the hackathon?; Code of Conduct

Only with the support of all guests, participants and supporters can our event be a barrier-free and non-discriminatory experience. In addition to the measures we are taking as organisers, we hope that the following tips will help everyone at the conference feel comfortable, safe and able to participate fully:

Tips for sensitive interaction at the conference

- Self-care and mindfulness
  Try to treat yourself and others with consideration and responsibility. Be aware of your own boundaries and needs and take your feelings seriously. You can talk to a good friend if you feel uncomfortable after a situation or if your feelings overwhelm you. If necessary, seek support from our contact persons. You can be sure that your concerns will be listened to and dealt with confidentially and responsibly.
- Sensitive/gender-specific forms of address
  Only use gender-specific forms of address if you know how the other person wishes to be addressed or ask them how they would like to be addressed. Respect other people's self-designations. To let others know how you want to be addressed, you are welcome to add the appropriate pronouns to your name tag (e.g. ‘she/her’ for women, ‘he/him’ for men).
- Pay attention to language and wording
  Please use language that is critical of racism and sensitive to discrimination and use gender-neutral pronouns. Further information can be found in the glossary and checklist for the guide to anti-racist language use (University of Hamburg 2013, PDF) and in the tips and tricks for inclusive and gender-neutral language (University of Konstanz 2021, PDF).
- Be aware of privileges
  We invite you to reflect on your own privileges and to engage in conversation with others about differences, privileges and disadvantages.
- Look and get help
  In situations where you are unsure whether a person is being attacked or feels uncomfortable: ask whether the situation is okay for the person concerned. If possible, listen to the person and show them that you trust them. Sometimes, just knowing that they are not alone is enough to help them regain their strength. If necessary, refer them to our contact persons and get help in good time.

- If you may have crossed a line
  If someone tells you that you have crossed a line: do not argue and do not try to explain your behaviour. Stop the action or conversation and try not to violate these and other boundaries again. Feel free to talk to our contact persons if you feel misunderstood or want to know what you can change. Even if you are unsure whether you have crossed a boundary, you can contact our contact persons and ask for advice.
- Photos and videos:
  No inappropriate content will be created or shared. Images that defame other participants will not be shared privately or publicly.
- Anyone who does not wish to be photographed/filmed can express this in advance. Images/videos will be deleted if objections are raised afterwards.

Flow chart – What if...?

The following principles apply:

1. In a critical situation, we all have a responsibility to intervene.

   - Assess the situation.

2. No one should put themselves in danger!

3. The police should only be called in an emergency (e.g. violence) or if requested by the person concerned.

Level 0 Contact persons (All organisers):

If approached: Provide information about the awareness concept/contacts/if desired, refer to awareness persons.

If you observe a critical situation yourself: If necessary, intervene directly, seek help, locate awareness persons and call them in.

Level 1 Awareness persons (mobile at the event)

Important:

We are biased in favour of the persons concerned; their perception is not questioned. We do not engage in lengthy discussions with persons who behave inappropriately.

- We are not dispute resolution/mediation! It is about protection and de-escalation. When we observe a situation;
  - Signs that someone is feeling uncomfortable
  - 'Obvious' misconduct
- Assess whether/how best to intervene
- Low threshold: engage in conversation and indirectly de-escalate the situation
- Depending on the situation, address the misconduct specifically
- Once addressed: ask the person concerned about their wishes/expectations
- The most important thing is the well-being of the person concerned!

Well-being:

- Safe space
- Organise transport to accommodation
- Reassuring conversation
- Look for the person's friends
- Earplugs
- Food, drink, hot water bottle

Regarding critical situations:

- Address the person who has misbehaved
- Refer the person if necessary
- Consider the security situation and the wishes of the person concerned, but it is our responsibility to refer the person.
- If the person concerned wishes support in a conversation with the person who has misbehaved, we can also offer this.
- If the person concerned would like support in talking to the person who behaved inappropriately, we can also offer this.
- Consult with other members of the awareness team
- The consent of the person concerned must always be obtained in advance!
- Describe the case anonymously (if desired)

I hereby confirm that I have read the awareness concept applicable to this event. I commit to understanding it as the basis for my behavior at this event and to contributing to its adherence. I will respect and uphold the personal boundaries of others. I want to actively contribute to ensuring that everyone feels comfortable and safe at the event. I am aware that a violation of the awareness concept will have consequences, which in serious cases may include disciplinary action and even criminal prosecution.
